When the Polls Open and Clove. Under the old law, in township elec-tions, township meetings could be called and the opening of the polls delayed till 11 o'clock A. M. The spring township elections having been abolished the reason for this (if there ever was any) ceased; and we accordingly find that in the Code no provision is made for these township meetings and the consequent delay in opening the polls. The present law in regard to opening and closing the polls is section chapter 3 of the Code, entitled "Elections by the People." It is as follows "5. At the elections to be held under this chapter the polls shall not be open-ed before sunrise, and shall be closed at

THE CATHOLIC COUNCIL.

From the Philadelphia North American. From the Philadelphia North American.

Many of our American bishops of the Latin Church have left by steamer to attend the grand Council of their.

Church, to be held in Home by order of the Pope, and many more are about following. If the Church journals in the United States afford any indication of the temper of these American bishops,
the liberal Catholics of Europe will find themselves very greatly mistaken in their expectations respecting their course in the Council, for these journais are ultramontane to the last degree, We, however, do not think that nais are ultramontane to the last de-gree. We, however, do not think that hese papers represent the bishops, as he latter are known to have very little the latter are known to have very little communication with them.

The resistance to the ultramontane pretensions of the Pope seems more likely to come from Europe, however, than America. The liberal Government of Spain has just announced that if the Latin Council should adopt decisions bestile in operation to the Spanish constitution, they would be treated by the government as null and void, and similar conclusions have been reached by the governments of Italy, Austria, Prussia, France and Bayaria, the very heart and stronghold of the reaced by the governments of Italy, Austria, Prussia, France and Bayaria, the very heart and sironghold of the Latin Church. The Italian Goyernment being aiready excommunicated, and having no paolific arrangement with the Pope, will not care much for the decisions of the Council, except that the more uitra they may be, the more will its own position be airengthened with the Italian people against the Pope.

France seems likely, however, to be the liberal leader in the Council, the Freuch government being opposed entirely to the prentensions of the Pope, and having a strong position on account of the long protection afforded by France to the Pope. If the latter persists in being troubesome, the Emperor has but to withdraw the French garrison and leave him to his fate, which the Italian troops would make very brief. Duranious, Bishon.

Emperor has but to withdraw the French garrison and leave him to his fate, which the Italian troops would make very brief. Dupanionp, Bishop of Orlesns, will, it is said, lead the French liberals, though how strong that parly may be it is impossible to tell at present.

As usual in all such cases, the Garman Liberals seem to be the best organized and the most resolute. They have conferred together and drawn up documents representing their views, and they have the advantage of knowing that they are backed by their government has been especially anxious on the subject, and tried to get up as council of governmental powers in terested in the matter, though without success, the most of them having quietily, like Spain, resolved to ignore and disregard the doings of the Council. All the propositions to be submitted by the Pope will be simply voted upon.

It is assumed, by many members of the Latin Church, that these things concern none but themselves. But this is preposterous. The syllabon, upon which the decisions of this council are to be framed, has been before the world will not take place till January 1871.

submitted by the Pope will be simply voted upon.

It is assumed, by many members of the Latin Church, that these things concern none but themselves. But this is prepositerous. The syllabors, upon which the decisions of this council are to be framed, has been before the world for a long time, and is seen and known to be a blow aimed at the whole machinery of modern intelligence, progress, free government, and liberal inquiry. Authority is, according to this syllabors, to take the place of reason and inquiry, and the inquiring mind of man is to be hedged in and bound down by disabilities as onerous as those of the dark ages. The Church asseries its supremacy entirely in matters like marriage and education that modern progress has firmly attached to secular institutions.

As regards the infallibility of the Pope which is the first doctrine to be forced on the Latin Church by means of this Council, although it is not new, it has invariably been resisted by the Europsan governments, the most Catholio of them being the most determined in their opposition. Ambitious, violent, ill tempered, or intriguing Popes, have in past ages provoked the blood.
